

A checksum records the identity of file content. The same bytes produce the same digest.

Audit records make processing steps traceable. They do not replace access control.